Mackenzie King Addresses Large Audience at Camrose

Presents Liberal Point of View on Questions of the Day—
Says His Party Has Solved Grave Problems and Triumphed Over Serious Situations in Past

(From The Viking News)

The Bailey Theatre at Camrose was crowded and standing room was at a premium when the Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King accompanied by the Hon. Chas. Stewart, W. R. Howson, M.L.A., and other prominent Liberal leaders, addressed a meeting in the afternoon. Previous to making his address, he presented a testimonial to Mr. Alex Webb, of Camrose, from the Royal Humane Society, who saved the life of Fred Stewart last April. Fred Stewart in the course of some work he was doing grasped a power line charged to the extent of 2000 volts. He became unconscious immediately. Seeing his predicament Alex Webb cut the power line released Stewart who was badly burned. Mr. King commented on the bravery and presence of mind of Mr. Webb. Hon. Charles Stewart also thanked him from the platform, saying that it meant so much to Mrs. Stewart and himself that their son's life had been saved.

"I am not here to ask you to vote for the Liberal party, Mr. King told his audience. 'I am not here to lay before you the point of view of the Liberal party in respect to questions of the day, leaving it to you to decide whether I have made a fair presentation and to determine what you will do.'"

The Liberal leader turned to the Conservative party. Mr. Bennett had promised impossible things at the last general election. Mr. King said he did not promise to do that. "I am not trying to out-do the C.C.F.," he preferred rather to point to the record of the Liberal administration under Sir Wilfrid Laurier and also to that of his own administration. Those records showed in the past Liberal administrations had been able to meet and solve grave problems and to triumph over serious situations.

"These are serious times," Mr. King told his audience. "We must be very careful of our movements which we set on foot."

In periods of unrest there was always danger of people's hearts getting better of their heads. In such time unwise steps might be taken and the result of such action was sometimes far reaching and injurious.

Mr. Bennett had been given a free hand since becoming prime minister, the Liberal leader asserted. He, Mr. King had tried to refrain from embarassing him.

Says Bennett Failed
"Now Mr. Bennett has had three years. Three years is long enough in times like these for any party to carry out its program," said the Liberal leader—Mr. Bennett had failed and he had done so because his policies were wrong. His policy of raising tariffs higher and higher had proven a mistaken one.

"But the worst of all has been that our trade is strangled," he continued. This meant transportation companies in Canada had no business. "There isn't a man woman nor child in this audience who isn't worse off because of this tariff policy of the Conservative party," Mr. King stated.

Will Not Be Controlled

Then he turned to the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation. If he was ever prime minister of Canada again he would not be controlled by any third party, the Liberal leader insisted. There were people going around the country saying they hoped to get the balance of power in the house of commons.

He gave notice now on any future occasion, if entrusted with power he would either govern with a majority or not at all.

Class governments could not carry on Mr. King stated to his audience. The C.C.F. had gone the length of saying they were going to change the structure of Canada's industrial and social life. It proposed government ownership operation, control of the great natural resources and socially necessary means of production and distribution. Mr. King reiterated his question, how are they going to do it?

Confiscation, continued Mr. King, meant civil war. But the C.C.F. said they would print necessary money with the national resources of Canada as security and buy all these things. Money turned out on printing presses would soon lose its value.

But an almost insuperable obstacle to the C.C.F. plan lay in the fact that it could only be put through by amending the Canadian constitution. How did the C.C.F. propose to amend the constitution against an adverse house of commons senate and series of provincial governments?

Some Liberal Policies
Reduced tariffs, liberation of internal trade, a central bank, a great national commission to deal with unemployment, supervision over financial institutions and control of investments by an investment control board. These were among the policies of the Liberal party.

Norman F. Priestly Chief Speaker at C.C.F. Meeting

Mr. Armstrong, Wavy Lake; S. Lefsrud, Viking, Address
Audience—C. A. Ronning Was Unable To Be Present

(From The Viking News)

Mr. N. F. Priestly, secretary of the Dominion C.C.F. organization, was the chief speaker at the C.C.F. meeting in the Elks' hall Monday evening, sponsored by the Viking U.F.A. and affiliated district locals. Considerable disappointment was expressed when it was learned after the meeting commenced that C. A. Ronning, U.F.A. M.L.A. of Camrose, was not to be present as advertised for several days previously. Mr. Priestly announced that Mr. Ronning had gone to the Peace River country with other speakers to expound the doctrines of the C.C.F.

The hall was comfortably filled when Mr. Armstrong, of Wavy Lake district, was introduced and gave his views of the C.C.F. He mentioned some co-operative organization in England with 70,000 women enrolled who had met and all agreed that they were on the right track. This meeting had received very little publicity in the daily press which was deplored. Mr. Armstrong stated he believed in the C.C.F. platform and urged everyone to study the manifesto. He opined that it was time to discard the old line parties and try something new.

S. Lefsrud, chairman, outlined some of his experiences in McGill University class where he rubbed elbows with some of bank presidents, cabinet ministers, and captains of finance, and stated that on occasions he became at loggerheads with the professors of economics who did not dare state their true opinion on pertinent economic questions of the day because of the powerful interests represented in the class. He said it was different now. University professors were ready to take part in the overthrow of the present system and become part of some other form. The chairman had espoused the C.C.F. principles some six years ago after meeting Mr. Armstrong and could see no intrinsic good in the old line parties. He took exception to the hearsay that the leaders of the C.C.F. were ex-puliters, feeling that this was quite an unjust accusation.

Without any further preliminaries, Mr. Priestly was introduced, who expressed his regrets that Mr. Ronning was in the Peace River district and could not be in two important places at once. Mr. Priestly regretted the fact that the roads were not travelled from Holden to Viking and felt that this was something that evidently had been overlooked. He also paid his respects to the weekly newspapers that had published much information regarding the U.F.A. and C.C.F. programs, but could not say as much for the daily press. In fact, he stated that the daily papers withheld a lot of information that the people were entitled to.

The speaker told of his early life as a Liberal, his father and grandfather had been Liberals but he had seen a great light while on his homestead.

NOTICE

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Secretary-Treasurer, M.D. of Battle River, No. 423, Irma, Alta.

"Yes. Who got yours?"

somewhere in northern Alberta and ever since had been down in Calgary steering the U.F.A. He defied anyone in the audience to distinguish between a Liberal and a Conservative, and gave his opinion that Liberal now-days should be spelled with a small "l." Nevertheless, he quoted copious extracts of speeches from prominent Liberals, including Lloyd George and President Roosevelt (Democrat, same as Liberal) to prove that the Liberals had a vision long ago, and said that Ronning had done more for Canada in three months than Premier Bennett had done in three years. However, he felt that Communism, Socialism, and C.C.F. principles were quite alike although they might differ in procedure.

He spoke of the distress in the southern part of the province and the abundance in the northern part and mentioned how favored this district was, but nevertheless felt that there should be some discontent with the present system. He launched into an energetic outline of the C.C.F. convention held at Regina recently and the great response from all the provinces. The city of Regina had provided them with every convenience, even the daily press had been good boys. The speaker dealt at length on the fourteen points of the C.C.F. manifesto which included the establishment of a planned socialized economic order; socialization of all financial machinery such as banking, currency, credit and insurance; social ownership of all transportation, communications, power, industries and services; security of agriculture but not nationalization of farms; encouragement of more co-operative producers and consumers' enterprises; the regulation of hours of labor in all forms of human activities; publicly organized health, hospital and medical services; amendment of the B.N.A. Act; relations with other countries; new system of taxation and public finance; freedom of speech; a commission to deal with criminal and social affairs, and an emergency program to cure unemployment and other social problems. And last but not least, that no C.C.F. government would rest content until it has eradicated capitalism and put into operation the full socialistic program that would lead to the establishment in Canada of the Co-operative Commonwealth. He did not touch upon just how this was going to be done. Mr. Priestly was given an attentive and respectful hearing all through his discourse. No questions being asked, the meeting closed with the national anthem.

Real Light On Russia.

So many conflicting reports as to conditions in Soviet Russia have been given to the public in recent years, and it has been so difficult to distinguish in such reports what is pure propaganda either for or against the political and economic systems now prevailing in that vast country, that people have developed the habit of shrugging their shoulders when Russia is mentioned and refusing to place reliance in much that is told them. It was, therefore, with unusual interest that delegates to the World's Grain Conference at Regina listened to the first hand knowledge which was brought to them by E. J. Sturminan, consulting engineer of Brooklyn, Iowa, who was employed by the Soviet Government for several years in connection with its gigantic plans for the mechanization of agriculture as part of its famous five-year plan.

Mr. Sturminan had no political axe to grind, he had no propaganda to spread. He merely told an unvarnished story to the assembled world grain experts of the situation as he personally knew it to exist in Russia. And inasmuch as agricultural development in Russia cannot but have a direct effect on agriculture in Western Canada, it is of interest and value to have Mr. Sturminan's first-hand information.

Quoting Litvinoff, Soviet Commissar of Foreign Relations, as stating at Geneva last June that "unemployment, wage cuts, and strikes were unknown in the land of the Soviet," Mr. Sturminan commented that they were impossible in a country "where bread cards are granted only to the obedient worker." Control of the country's food supply precluded strikes, he said. There is no unemployment because the country's census takes no account of any but the workers—the unfortunates do not officially exist. There is no necessity for wage cuts for the money the government pays its workers has no value outside Russia. It is paper money and will not be honored for one nickel on a purchase abroad, or on a purchase of imported goods within Russia, Mr. Sturminan explained.

Nevertheless there is wage-cutting in a sense, Mr. Sturminan giving the following example: The Soviet Government floats government loans each year, requiring each worker to turn back a part of his wages for bonds. In a fair job it amounts to a month's wages, which he could use for food. The worker feels this keenly but he does not complain.

Russian workers, he continued, by report always poverty stricken, as a whole today have the worst living conditions of any of the workers of their neighboring countries in Europe. The Russian could meet conditions in his plodding peasant life, but uprooted and the reserve supplies taken from him, he has no way to cope with winter's cold and the fearful winter hunger. The food supply available to Russian workers has fallen off in quantity steadily since 1928. Clothing, bedding and shoe supply are reduced to almost nothing. Housing has become more and more congested in the industrial and agricultural centres promoted by the Soviet.

Describing the system of farming, Mr. Sturminan said farmers lived in villages going out to farm their own individual strips of land. Throwing the land into collective farms was only to obliterate the dividing lines by farming them in one unit. These collective farms were established before the State farms. The State farms were designed as models in each section for collectives and communes. Exorbitant taxes, no right to purchase, the possibility of fine as an enemy of the plan, and the promise of machinery through the government on their collectives quickly brought 90 per cent. of the farmers into collectives in the great drives of 1930 and 1931.

A Soviet State farm is never an independent farm in the western world sense. It remains only the link in a vast network of farms, with Moscow as the centre from which emanates all plans, orders and supplies. The man directing these farms is not often an agriculturist, nor even an engineer. The entire crop is wheat.

State farms are under the direction of a resident farm superintendent. He has several assistants, all with offices and residences in the main settlements. There are directors of the institute, the experimental station, and of grain production. Each of these have further assistants, the number ever growing without end. All are specialists and did no manual labor. The administrative class grows larger and the working class relatively smaller. More and more offices are required and more desks to put in them. The working class gains recruits from only the more remote districts and in the seasons of intensive work the women are brought in as "pinch hitters." Now, in 1933, it has become necessary to drive the office class back to the farm.

Describing how everything is centralized in Moscow, how even a practical director of a State farm had to wait for orders to begin an operation on his farm that he knew was long overdue, but which, although controlling perhaps thousands of workers, he had no right to start without definite orders from Moscow, Mr. Sturminan said:

"One question looms large in looking over the situation in this modern dictatorship. How did the government get control over a vast country and over the destinies of a conglomerate people? The answer is simple: She got control of the food supply. Why should any people's government need to hold its people by such a strong leash? Because the government is of the minority party, representing five to seven per cent. of the entire population. Then one wonders why do not more Russians join the Communist party and share the privileges which attend the 'party membership' in Russia today? The answer is that it is made very difficult for a Russian to join the Party, and of late only the children of Communists are allowed to join."

Everything, down to the smallest detail, is dictated from Moscow, and control maintained through a collection of fines, taxes and shares of crop. There is never any lessening of centralization by any such name in official circles. It is always neatly explained as an increasing of power in some particular field. This brings us to a very important consideration in a government dominated by five to seven per cent. of the population and it is this, Party Men must be kept in all the major agricultural posts, regardless of ability among "comrades" because in these officials lies the power to control food, production, farming methods, all expenditure, education of the worker and his family. Thus it is the concern of the government in appointing men to these chief posts that they are "safe" and "good party men." That is the reason why Communists insist that "politics and farm engineering cannot be separated."

Diarrhoea and Dysentery do not need to run for any length of time until the whole system is weakened and debilitated. Few other diseases so quickly undermine the strength and bring about a condition of prostration and often collapse.

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry is not only prompt and effective in checking the looseness of the bowels, but at the same time it strengthens, stimulates and braces up the system.

Grain Deterioration

Saskatchewan Research Workers Develop Method For Treating Damp Wheat

The practical value of the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference is revealed again, in addresses contributed to discussion at the conference side of this mammoth gathering by Dr. R. K. Larmour, J. S. Clayton, and C. L. Wryghall, of the laboratories of the University of Saskatchewan. These men have been experimenting with wet wheat, with a view to eliminating the development of heat and consequent deterioration of the grain before it reaches the driers at the head of the lakes.

Undue rain seasons have not been a common thing in the agricultural life of prairie Canada of recent years, and yet on occasions we do get protracted rainy spells that carry their threat to cut grain. The three Saskatchewan scientists mentioned have developed a vapor called tolune, that is held to be not inflammable in the slightest and that carries no danger to the quality of grain, but that yet effectively prevents damage from heat, mustiness and fungi in the grain consequent upon wet weather.

This would seem to represent a distinct advance in agricultural science, and that Saskatchewan men have been able to reproduce this treatment and impart it to the World's Grain Conference will be a matter of satisfaction to all citizens of this province. —Regina Leader-Post.

Maxims Of His Majesty

Rules For Life Conduct In Workroom At Buckingham Palace

An English journal in its current issue gives favorite quotations of celebrated people and shows quite clearly how many men and women whose names and deeds are known through the world fortify their lives by recalling great sayings and sentiments. This list of great people is headed by His Majesty King George and his list of quotations is worthy of being reproduced for its own sake as well as for the eminence of the one who uses it. These sentiments that hang in his workroom at Buckingham Palace read:

Teach me to be obedient to the rules of the game.

Teach me to distinguish between sentiment and sentimentality, admiring without despising the other.

Teach me neither to proffer nor to receive cheap praise.

If I am called upon to suffer, let me be like a well-bred beast that goes away to suffer in silence.

Teach me to win if I may; if I may not, teach me to be a good loser.

Teach me neither to cry for the moon, nor to cry over spilled milk.

There is a fine philosophy of life in these various maxims. Their reading enables one to understand better the wisdom and restraint and good sense and understanding usefulness of King George during his reign. Humble folk fighting life's daily battles may find some inspiration in these maxims. They are here given to that end. —Regina Leader-Post.

Round Up Criminals

International Organization Formed To Conduct Drive On Crooks

A police of several nations organized recently in Chicago the "international world police" to chase the criminal from his haunts over the globe.

The new international organization was formed at a meeting of Canadian, American and European police officials attending conferences sponsored by Barron Collier, special deputy police commissioner of New York, the international police conference, and the international association of chiefs of police. Winnipeg was represented by Chief Chris H. Newton.

Prefer Native Workers

Many thousands foreign residents in Chile are affected by a new law stipulating that 95 per cent. of all factories and office workers must be of Chilean nationality. Many will have to leave the country to seek work elsewhere. If the foreigner has been in the country 10 years, or is married to a Chilean, he will be counted as a Chilean, and he will be exempt if he is performing duties for which a native is unskilled.

Club Will Be Exclusive

Aviators who have crossed the north Atlantic alone are going to form a club. Plans for the organization were discussed by Amelia Earheart Putnam and her house guest, Captain James A. Mollison. They broached the idea to Wiley Post, world solo flyer, who expressed approval. Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Jimmie Mattern, the other eligibles, also will be invited to join.

New Department In Nursing Is Established At Edmonton

To meet prevalent conditions, and following along lines of nursing organizations in other cities, the Edmonton Graduate Nurses' Association has organized an hourly nursing service in connection with the graduate nurses' registry.

Hourly nursing means that patients in the home for stated periods as they find necessary to comply with medical care. This form of nursing is similar to visiting nursing, except that hourly nursing is paid for on a time basis rather than on a visit basis.

The Graduate Nurses' Association is anxious to establish hourly nursing and is fortunate in establishing it under the graduate nurses' registry. The patient, nurse and community are thus in a position to benefit from an organized nursing service. This nursing service, in whatever capacity it is administered, will be with the co-operation of the medical profession.

Vimy Ridge Memorial

Undertaking Which Is Not Yet Completed, Is Massive In Conception

The memorial on Vimy Ridge, which four Canadian divisions and the Thirteenth British Brigade of West Kents and Scots stormed in April, 1917, is not yet completed fifteen years after the Armistice. But it is an undertaking massive in conception, on 240 acres 200 feet above the Douai Plain, and designed to be worthy of a victory of which Sir Douglas Haig said: "The capture of the renowned Vimy Ridge is an achievement of the highest order and of which Canada may well be proud." It was fitting that the sculptor should be a Canadian, Walter S. Allward, who won an award that was open to the British Empire. Since 1925 he has been engaged on the work in a London studio. "All the time," he says, "I have sought to avoid any semblance of drum-beating. Canada mourns her dead in the way I have endeavored to show in the Mother Spirit, which stands with drooped head on the wall, brooding over the plain on which her sons fell. Sorrow but not valingry is there." Blocks of from twelve to twenty tons were required, and they were found in an old Roman quarry in Yugoslavia, from which the stone to build the Palace of Diocletian in Spalato in the third century was taken.

The common cause of France and Canada is to be represented by twin pylons 138 feet high. Below them will be seen the Spirit of Sacrifice in twenty heroic figures grouped at the ends of a wall 237 feet long, the base of the memorial. Surmounting the pylons will appear in relief Peace, Justice, Truth and Knowledge. The design calls for the covering of mouths of guns along the base by olive branches and laurel. The memorial should be ready for dedication on Dominion Day next year. The approaches will be by avenues of pines grown in Canada and France.

In F. A. McKenzie's "Canada's Day of Glory" may be read the breathless story of the capture of Vimy Ridge. A Canadian correspondent, he does justice to the part the men of Kent and Scotland played in that immortal feat of arms. The dedication would not be adequate without the presence of the commander of the troops engaged, Sir Julian Byng, Governor-General of Canada from 1921 to 1928. —New York Times.

Canadian Legion At Tokio

Structure Nearly Completed and Will Be Soon Ready For Occupancy

It is understood that work on the Canadian legion in Tokio is proceeding rapidly and that the structure will shortly be ready for the occupancy of Hon. Herbert Marler, Canadian minister to Japan. While no official statement has been given out by the government, it is learned that Mr. Marler, on the occasion of his last visit to Ottawa, urged upon the government the advisability of going ahead with the legion construction so that advantage might be taken of the low costs of labor and materials.

The only opposition to the scheme was the scarcity of money for embarking on such a project which could not be described as absolutely essential. Long term financing was arranged, however, and the work has been in progress some time. It is expected a statement will be issued by the government shortly.

Coffee exports from Haiti this year have exceeded all expectations.

A Genius For Organizing

Lord Of Thousand Ships Was Millionaire At Thirty-Nine

One of the reasons why the "sun never sets on the British flag" was the organizing genius of Sir John Ellerman, son of a German bookkeeper. Sir John died recently in France, but in a hundred ports from Southampton to Sydney, his flag is flying on the ships which keep Britain first on the seas.

It was quite appropriate that Ellerman, the ship owner, should be the wealthiest man in Britain, whose life and prosperity depend upon sea-borne commerce. A few years back when many values had not flown so far as they have today, Sir John's wealth was estimated at from $100,000,000 to $300,000,000. That put him far ahead of any other Britisher and in the Henry Ford and Rockefeller class. Even today the thrifty Britisher is calculating that the nation will collect $57,000,000 in death duties.

The Ellerman career, like that of Sir Thomas Lipton, proved that the art of being a self-made man bears no American patent. Ellerman rose from the humble place of black-clothed English clerk in a shipping office. By 39 he was a millionaire. By 50 he owned one-eighth of all the British shipping.

He was frugal in a nation where somewhat free spending is the tradition of the wealthy. He never owned a yacht or a racing stable. It was said in the city that he never spent more than 5 per cent. of a year's income.

The rest went into ships and more ships, and he owned a large chunk of London—and newspapers. At one time his newspaper holdings rivalled those of Northcliffe. But Ellerman never shared Arthur Harmsworth's passion for political influence. He was content to collect the dividends and let the other men advise the cabinet.

Move Settlers North

Settlers In Drouth Stricken Areas Of Southern Alberta To Go North

The Alberta government and the railways have agreed to share the costs of moving about 150 settlers from drouth-stricken areas in southern Alberta, and only decision of the Dominion government as to its share in the project is awaited, according to Hon. George Hoadley, Alberta minister of agriculture.

The settlers will be moved to more favorable areas in northern Alberta.

LONGING

I seek the forest recess
For sweet communion high
With that consoling power
That dwells up in the sky.

The violet's dewy petal,
The damp, refreshing moss,
Help sooth my tortured spirit,
My vital, stabling loss.

For they are infant voices
In Nature's primary grade
That lip of God's own presence
Through throes of grief to aid.

His baby chair!—long vacant.
Now has been taken away
The flesh he so enobled—
His manhood's frame—today.

O, heavenly hosts above us!
I look with streaming eye,
And floods of passionate yearning
In vain to stem it try.

If I could but behold him!
Could I his life caress
'Twould help vibrating heartstrings
To gently quiver less.

I reach my empty arms out,
But they are empty still;
Sad earth alone's no comfort
I sense the heavenly will.

I pluck the luscious berries;
Their neectar's brave intent
So clearly indicating
For quenching thirst they're sent.

And I, a thirst for solace,
Bring back a vine in bloom:
Its fragrance softly filling
The twilight in my room.

A careful observer who has been studying up on the subject informs us that the best barometer in the world is the old, scratched up, lop-eared, battle-scarred cat. If he eats grass, it is a sign of rain. If he stands with his back to the stove it means cold weather. When he washes his face, wash yours, for you are going to have company. If he is nervous at the time when he is usually sleeping, examine your lightning rods and disconnect your radio for a storm is coming. Everything he does is a sign of something. If you haven't a measly cat, you had better get one at once.

Wedding Bells

OTT-STUART

The J. W. Stuart home on Saturday evening was the scene of the wedding of Vera Lillian Stuart to Ruben Henry Ott. The marriage took place at 4:15 where the friends and relatives of the couple gathered. Rev. W. S. Brooker officiated. The bridesmaid was Miss Evelyn Kemp and the best man, Phillip Stuart.

The house was charmingly decorated and the bride was gownned in a frock of point-disprisy, with a taffeta jacket and a bridal veil with a wreath of orange blossoms. Mrs. John Summers played the wedding march.

After the ceremony, a wedding supper was served to the guests by Patricia Washburn and Hazel Stuart. Immediately after, the couple left to motor to Banff for their honeymoon, the bride wearing a smart navy blue and white ensemble.

Many presents were received by the popular couple from their host of friends.

Those present at the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. A. Ott, of Erskine, Alta., with their son, Donald, and daughter, Mrs. John Summers and daughter; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Stuart, of Irma; Mrs. C. Reeves and Jack Davison; Miss Lillian Kirkpatrick; Yvonne Bisson and Mr. Harvey Beverage.

The bride has been teaching various schools in the neighborhood and is a popular young woman in the community. The groom has been buying grain at Greenshields for some time and after a short honeymoon they will be at home to their many friends at Greenshields.
